Department	Student's first & Last Name; Grade	Rationale for why this student is being recognized as an "Accountable."
Art	Kasey Ringvelski (10) 	Kasey Ringvelski is very hard working. She takes on a lot of responsibility and has high expectations for herself. Kasey has consistently been a reliable and critical aspect of all our group projects. She is very genuine with her work and is always striving to do her best.
Business	Liam Timkey 	Liam is an exceptional student in MS Office. He takes great responsibility for his work and ensures that all of his assignments are turned in and on time. He often will double check to ensure his work is complete and to the best of his ability. He is a positive role model for other students and is usually the first student to help other students that are struggling. He is always on time and is an active participant in class. I might add that his computer skills are top-notch too! Way to go Liam!

Consultant Teachers	Henry Lord (11) 	Henry always comes to class prepared and holds himself accountable for his work in classes. He takes great pride in his work ethic. Henry always aims to do well and puts in the effort needed to achieve his goals. Henry always tries his best and follows through with his work if he has any questions. He can self-reflect, and acknowledge what he does well with and what he can improve upon. Henry values his education and it shows on a daily basis.
	Tailis Hayes (9) 	Tailis is a diligent 9th grade student that takes great pride in his academics. In class Tallis is always determined to try his hardest, and holds himself accountable to his own high academic standards. It is not only himself that he holds accountable, but Tailis holds his fellow classmates and friends accountable as well. Tailis will take it upon himself to help out his peers and will also hold them accountable and hold them to a standard. It is through his hard work, dedication, and accountability toward himself and others that Tailis Hayes demonstrates accountability as a Lewiston Porter Lancer
ELA	Sabrina Huynh (10) 	Sabrina Huynh always goes above and beyond on her assignments in English class. She also volunteered to read multiple parts for a Reader's Theater script, challenging herself. Sabrina is reflective on her grades and always strives for more. She adds a lot to our English class. Keep up the good work, Sabrina!
Health/PE	Ellie Lattore (10) 	If Ellie is absent from PE she emails her teacher and makes a plan to make up the class. . She is very accountable for her attendance, and performance. Keep up the great work Ellie
Life Skills/LLC	Alex Short- LLC (10)	Alex has really impressed me this year with his willingness to take accountability over his academics. He is responsible for getting his work done, using his time wisely, and has long term goals. He has made notable improvements in many areas and I am proud of him for taking matters into his own hands this year.

Math	Hope Parkhill-Wylie (11) 	Hope demonstrates accountability by keeping track of her very busy schedule and making sure she keeps track of class content and assignments. Hope recently went to Australia and was cognizant of the work she was missing and took a proactive approach to learning the material and completing assessments in a timely manner. Hope knows she is accountable for her actions and exemplifies the characteristic of accountability. She is the treasurer for Future Health Professionals, and is extremely accountable and timely with taking care of deposits and checks. She is respectful, kind, and manages her time and our money very well !
Music	James Scully (9) 	James is a real asset to the music program participating in both orchestra and choir. He is a wonderful harpist, and is finding his voice as a tenor. James is extremely mature, kind, and dedicated. Because of his musical talents, a lot is asked of him. He is always accountable to his commitments. If he has to be late to, or miss a rehearsal, he takes responsibility and communicates that to his music teachers. We know that he will always follow through and be prepared the next time. He demonstrates daily, accountability for his words and actions.
Science	Josie Sippel (9) 	Josie (along with her lab table mates) has been awesome this year. She goes above and beyond in the classroom, participating in discussions, getting her work completed, and working with and helping others along the way when she can. She is the epitome of accountability, always quick to ask for any work she missed or will miss for a past or future absence, and never missing a deadline. An amazing, kind, respectful, and of course "accountable" person all around!!!
Social Studies	Halle Conrad (12) 	Halle is the definition of dependability. She inspires other students to work up to their potential, and displays true leadership amongst her peers. Halle has a calming presence that positively impacts the dynamic of every class she's in. We appreciate her drive and joy.

Technology	Gabriel Serra (11) 	Gabriel has shown great dedication in helping with announcements every morning. He also came to TECH WARS with us in January. He did what he could to get ready for the competition while completing everything for his technology class.
Theater	Felix Billings (12) 	Felix is a wonderful example of accountability in the Theatre Department and in CHICAGO. He is respectful of his peers, contributes to discussions, takes responsibility for assignments in and out of class, knows his work and home obligations and communicates when there could be a potential conflict. Felix is inclusive of all others and if he has missed something will seek out a fellow cast member or class member, get the work and is prepared for the following day. THAT is a fine example of being accountable for one's actions!! Thank you, Felix!!!
World Language	Hersh Ahuja, grade 9 	Accountability means taking responsibility for your own learning. Hersh does just this. If he misses a class, he always is proactive about getting whatever work he missed, asking clarifying questions, and having me check over his responses before turning in his assignments. If he doesn't understand something during the lesson, he always advocates for himself and asks for further clarification and commits the information to memory. He never makes the same mistake twice. Hersh is a great example of an Accountable student!
